DARSHAN JARIWALA

Shyamji Jagandas Patel successful gracious man in his mid 50s who has achieved everything socially, professionally and economically but is striving to achieve his spouse's eternal happiness.

A pragmatic and logical Indian man who values relationships and family. Unfortunately his so called family values him only on his net worth. He is a man with a perfect balance of humor and practicality who has accepted his fate. But at the same time lives with a 'never giving up' spirit and is always game to try new things and keep up with the pace of the world. His only weakness is 'Good Food'. He has a sweet tooth, enjoys a hearty meal, believes in making most of what life has to offer and last but not the least, loves his wife, his brother like best friend and pet animals more than his life.

Forgiving comes very easy to him and the hope of becoming a father has made him world's most happiest person, literally!

SUPRIYA PATHAK

Kesar Shyamji Patel 3 time national award winner in Indian handicrafts, Kesar Patel, who once was a synonym for the Indian fashion Icon of India, today, 50, leads a color less life. She has not only shut her successfully running bandhini-leherya-patola designing and manufacturing factory, but has also shut herself from the world. She lives in her own shell which is limited to the walls of her house, her farm, her husband and her cattle. The real reason of eliminating colors from her life is the absence of child from her life. Unable to conceive, Kesar had found womanhood by deciding to parent her niece, but after her blood brother absconded with her daughter (whom she was going to adopt), Kesar's belief from relations, God and life evaporated.

Otherwise a strong headed woman like her has an attitude of 'never-give up' in life. And her life is just waiting for re-entrant of hope. A ray of hope will not only fill Kesar's life with colours again, but will re-ignite her motherhood and she will set as an idol to several mid-aged women who have given up on hopes in life.

She is the mirror image of more than 50% of Indian women with entrepreneur and creative skills. Unfortunately they have given up due to personal or social hindrances, but if their abilities and skills are re-ignited, they can prove themselves efficiently.

AVANI MODI

Anni born in India but was taken away to London when she was 3 by her father. Even though Raised by a single parent, Anni has mild glimpses of what mother's love is when she was taken care of by her aunt (Father's sister).

Anni has been raised with core Indian values yet infused with the right sort of western liberty.

23 now, she has been living alone in Paris since she was 18. She studied fashion designing in the world hub of fashion and now works as a designer for one of the biggest designer wear. Her fusion sense of bringing the world fashion together makes her stand out. Currently, she is eager to bring Indo-European fashion in trend for the spring season. Her aunt who is a maestro at making bandhni lehriya patola has given her an idea to make western costumes from bandhni lehriya material and pattern. She loves to sketch and doodle. That's her stress buster.

Anni is returning to India after 20 years and her joys knows no bounds. Streaked hair, tattoos, piercings with the sexiest clothing sense and a slight of Indo-European accent makes her a girl of today, a perfect blend of east meets the west. She's a total foodie and loves to drink once in a while.

She's witty, she's energetic, she's game for all the adventures. She hasn't had many boyfriends. She is not the kinds who would fall in love easily. But when she would, it would be the perfect gentleman however, totally opposite of her. Calm, composed and like mentioned earlier-gentle.

She respects relations and is totally a people's person.

RITTESH MOBH

Dr Pratik Gandhi London return well learned, well educated gynecologist chose to practice in his grand-father's hospital in a small town of Gujarat. Got the looks, skills and sophistication of an international doctor but at heart is a true Indian. Money doesn't drive him as much as satisfaction of serving his fellow Indians does. An expert in IVF technique, not only he wants to prove to his London based father that he is capable of making a successful name and career in India but also wants his make his expertise available to childless Indian couples. In spite of being brought up in London, his taste of idol partner is truly Indian. He is shy, soft spoken but can go to any length to prove his point. He is a man of morals and ethics and is a bit matured for the likes of his kinds.
